Petr. I say it is the Moone.
Kate. I know it is the Moone.
Petr. Nay then you lye: it is the blessed Sunne.
Kate. Then God be blest, it is the blessed sun,
But sunne it is not, when you say it is not,
And the Moone changes euen as your minde:
What you will haue it nam'd, euen that it is,
And so it shall be so for Katherine.
Hort. Petruchio, goe thy wayes, the field is won.
Petr. Well, forward, forward thus the bowle should run,
And not vnluckily against the Bias:
But soft: Company is comming here.

Enter Vincentio.

Good morrow gentle Mistris, where away:
Tell mee sweete Kate, and tell me truely too,
Hast thou beheld a fresher Gentlewoman:
Such warre of white and red within her cheekes:
What starrs do spangle heauen with such beautie,
As those two eyes become that heauenly face?
Faire louely Maide, once more good day to thee:
Sweete Kate embrace her for her beauties sake.
Hort. A will make the man mad to make the woman of him.
Kate. Yong budding Virgin, faire, and fresh, and sweete,
Whether away, or whether is thy aboade?
Happy the parents of so faire a childe;
Happier the man whom fauourable stars
Alots thee for his louely bedfellow.
Petr. Why how now Kate, I hope thou art not mad,
This is a man old, wrinckled, faded, withered,
And not a Maiden, as thou saist he is.
Kate. Pardon old father my mistaking eyes,
That haue bin so bedazled with the sunne,
That euery thing I look on seemeth greene:
Now I perceiue thou art a reuerent Father:
Pardon I pray thee for my mad mistaking.
Petr. Do good old grandsire, and with all make knowne
Which way thou trauellest if along with vs,
We shall be ioyfull of thy company:

Vin. Faire Sir, and you my merry
That with your strange encounter m
My name is call'd Vincentio, my dw
And bound I am to Padua, there to
A sonne of mine, which long I haue
Petr. What is his name?
Vinc. Lucentio Gentle sir.
Petr. Happily met, the happier fo
And now by Law, as well as reuerent
I may intitle thee my louing Father,
The sister to my wife, this Gentlewo
Thy Sonne by this hath married: wo
Nor be not grieued, she is of good est
Her dowrie wealthie, and of worthie
Beside, so qualified, as may be seeme
The Spouse of any noble Gentlewom
Let me imbrace with old Vincentio,
And wander we to see thy honest son
Who will of thy arriuall be full ioyo
Vinc. But is this true, or is it else y
Like pleasant trauailors to breake a iest
Vpon the companie you ouertake?
Hort. I do assure thee father so it is Petr. Come goe along and see the
For our first merriment hath made thee
Hor. Well Petruchio, this has put m
Haue to my Widdow, and if she frow
Then hast thou taught Hortensio to be

Enter Biondello, Lucentio an is out before

Biond. Softly and swiftly sir, for the
Luc. I flie Biondello; but they m home therefore leaue vs.
Biond. Nay faith' Ile see the Church
And then come backe to my mistris as
Gre. I maruaile Cambio comes not a

Enter Petruchio, Kate, Vince
With attendants,